Campaign finance data used in this report were provided by the Center for Responsive Politics (www.opensecrets.org), a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization dedicated to analyzing campaign finance data from the Federal Election Commission (FEC).

The methodology used in this report for determining the racial and ethnic makeup of the U.S. population was developed by Dr. John R. Logan at the Lewis Mumford Center at the University of Albany. Dr. Brian Stultz, of the Department of Sociology at the University of Florida-Gainesville, also provided much valuable help. The Lewis Mumford Center is a recognized authority on interpretation of census data, publishing dozens of reports on segregation and racial and ethnic patterns throughout America (<http://mumford1.dyndns.org/cen2000/report.html>).
